Creating interactive lesson plans

A day long workshop on 'Planning before teaching' was organised at JM International School, Dwarka. Educators from leading schools of Delhi participated in the session. The resource person deployed interesting training tools to encourage teachers to be creative and enthusiastic in their teaching through new technologies and initiatives. It was stressed that with positive outlook, educators could inspire, enthuse and motivate students to become independent learners and self-disciplined. The objective was to enable teachers to create comprehensive and interactive lesson plans while keeping different learning styles and Bloom's taxonomy in mind. Formulating rubrics, diagnosis, integrating life skills with curriculum, experiential learning, etc were also some of the core areas covered by the facilitator.
