Making Social Science an effective subject

A workshop on developing different teaching strategies and skills for effective transaction of curriculum was conducted by Ms. Srividya Sundar and by Ms. Rashmi Rekha. The session was started with an activity in which a coin was taken out by all the participants and the historical event of the year written on the coin was discussed. This was a great mind opening activity which could be applied to our own classes too. It would help develop a positive political, economical, geographical and social attitude in the minds of the children

The importance of this subject was discussed on the basis of the NCF 2005. It was reinforced that textbooks are not the bible and there is a need to go beyond the boundaries to make learning joyful. Further various innovative methods of teaching Social Sciences were discussed to develop the interest of students for the subject, alongside an activity was conducted on the same lines. All minds were revived with the discussion on the Bloom's Taxonomy and based on that a lesson planning activity was conducted.

Day 2 of the workshop focused on creating an interdisciplinary lesson plan for the children and the ideal way of evaluation and assessment was explained. The session was summarized by presenting the Lesson Plan and some worksheets on evaluation techniques. Indeed, it was a very informative and interesting experience.
