"The world needs all kinds of minds." – Dr. Temple Grandin, autism advocate and trailblazer.

On the occasion of World Autism Awareness Day, celebrated on April 2nd, the students of Class XII at ITL Public School have embarked on an inspiring initiative to foster awareness and understanding of autism. Through interactive sessions conducted for students from Classes IV to XII, enhanced by the screening of informative videos, they have effectively conveyed the meaning of autism, its symptoms, and its strengths, while dispelling common myths and misconceptions.

This endeavour has been instrumental in promoting a culture of inclusion, respect, and appreciation for neurodiversity. By challenging stereotypes and fostering empathy, the students have successfully created an environment where individuals with autism are celebrated for their unique talents and contributions.

Through the implementation of peer mentorship and inclusive classroom practices, ITL Public School has reaffirmed its commitment to providing equitable opportunities for all students. This initiative reflects the school's dedication to ensuring that every learner has the support and encouragement needed to thrive, irrespective of their neurodiversity.
