What is single use plastic and why is it a problem?

Animals also mistake single use plastic as food and can choke or become fatally ill from toxins — such as BPA, flame retardants, and PVC — as well as from other chemicals it soaks up. If they're not eaten, these plastic products can ensnare wildlife and end their lives by immobilizing or strangling them.

The Almighty's creation
Of the smittening world
Is tempting and wondrous
In which all lives whirl

The gigantic trees to Redolent blossoms and seas The mountains encapsulate An abundance of peace

Humans have distorted
The rosiness to the eradication
Turning the environment
Into a melange of destruction

The valleys bathed
With impeccable streams
Are filled with filth
Instead of gleaming greens

It's time we shall Summon together
To revive the most Cherished treasure

Nature is munificent
And a splendid carer
But it's a precarious side
Shall lead the world to the "dance of terror"

Let us retain the spunky
The beauty of the nature
To experience the beautiful happiness and rapture
