Maya loves visiting the City Park with her grandmother. It is a big, open place with lots of green grass and tall, shady trees. Every morning, many people come to the park to walk, jog, or play games.

This morning, Maya noticed a problem. She saw a little boy throw an empty plastic bottle right onto the grass instead of putting it in the dustbin. Later, she saw a big sign that said: "Keep the park clean and green. Use the bins provided." Maya told her grandmother, "If everyone throws their garbage on the ground, the park will become ugly and dirty. It could also harm the little squirrels and birds that live here." Her grandmother smiled and said, "You are right, Maya. We must all work together to keep our surroundings clean. Simple actions like always using a dustbin, bringing our own cloth bags, and telling others nicely to do the same make a big difference." They spent the rest of the morning picking up any loose wrappers they saw and putting them correctly in the blue recycling bin.
