READING

Q1. Read the passage and answer the questions that follow.

The Koala is a small animal found in Australia. Sometimes we refer to them as ‘bears’. But they are not bears. They are marsupials. Most marsupials have a pouch to keep their new-born babies.

They have a large head, a big nose and wide ears. Their body is covered with black, grey and brown woolly fur. They have strong, clawed feet which helps in moving around the trees. The word ‘koala’ means ‘no drink’. They do not drink water because they get almost all their moisture from eucalyptus leaves they feed on. This tree is both home and food for them. A baby koala is called joey. The baby stays in its mother’s pouch for six months. After that, it climbs on its mother’s back and rides with its arms around her neck.

Some years ago, koalas almost became extinct. The forests in which they lived were cleared for farming and building towns. They were killed for their warm and beautiful fur. Now these animals are now protected and no longer in danger.

I. Answer the following questions.

A. What do the most marsupials have?

_____.

B. What is the colour of the fur of the koala?

_____.

C. Why were they killed?

Q2. Read the passage and answer the questions that follow.

The story of Florence Nightingale

Florence Nightingale came from a wealthy family. Her parents wanted her to lead a comfortable life, but Florence did not want to lead a comfortable life. She wanted to lead a meaningful life. She wanted to help her fellow beings. Florence loved reading. She had a kind heart. Very often she looked after the sick farmers on her father's estate. She was kind to animals as her father's estate well. She once saved the life of an old dog that had broken its leg. When Florence was sixteen, she made up her mind to become a nurse. Her parents were angry and upset with her but Florence did not change her mind. They tried to reason with her but Florence did not change her mind. She went to Germany to study nursing. Soon after completing her studies, she started working as a nurse in a hospital in London.

In October 1853 a war broke out. It was called the Crimean War. Florence went to take care of the soldiers who were injured or had fallen ill on the battlefield. She was helped by a group of thirty-eight nurses. Every night she would take rounds of the hospital with a lamp in her hand. The soldiers started calling her 'the Lady with the Lamp'. Florence saved many lives.

The sick and the wounded thought she was an angel sent by God. She remained the friend of the sick all her life.
