“Your brand is what people say about you when you are not in the room.” — Jeff Bezos

An activity on Personal Brand Presentation was conducted for Class XI students on 13 May 2026 to help students identify and express their strengths, skills, interests, and future aspirations while enhancing their communication and presentation abilities.

Students confidently presented their personal brands before the class, highlighting their talents, values, hobbies, achievements, and career goals. The presentations reflected creativity, self-awareness, and individuality. Many students used charts, slides, and creative visuals to make their presentations more engaging and effective.

The activity provided an excellent platform for students to develop confidence, improve public speaking skills, and understand the importance of personal branding in today’s world. Overall, the event was interactive, informative, and highly appreciated by both students and teachers.
